Doctoral Program Application Guidelines

Admissions Policy for the Graduate School of Economics

<Ideal Candidates>

Based on the University of Osaka's admission policy, the Graduate School of Economics uses a variety of methods to select candidates. We seek talented individuals with the fortitude and logical thought process needed to systematically grasp the most groundbreaking knowledge in fields of economics and business administration. These individuals should be able to put specialized knowledge into practice, possess the intellectual curiosity needed for their education, and innovatively and originally solve problems from start to finish. They should also have the ability to communicate, including in English.

<Basic Policy on Applicant Selection>

In order to recruit the type of students as described above and to ensure a diverse student body, we will hold an entrance examination so that we can appropriately identify well-rounded individuals with comprehensive knowledge and abilities, individuals who have advanced specialized knowledge and abilities, and individuals who have a particularly strong spirit of inquiry and initiative.

<Relationship between selection method and qualities/abilities>

Since the focus of doctoral programs is on training researchers with cutting-edge knowledge, the expertise acquired from a master's program, proficiency in analytical methods, logical thinking ability, and the ability to share research results with a broader audience in English are determined via an oral examination during the selection of candidates for doctoral programs. Furthermore, a master's thesis must be submitted along with the application for admission (alternatively, a research paper can also be submitted). The academic potential of applicants' research theme toward the creation of a doctoral thesis, as well as their research capabilities, will be determined through an assessment of the submitted paper and research proposal.

Should any unforeseen circumstances arise, updates regarding the entrance examinations will be posted on our website (www.econ.osaka-u.ac.jp/).
